

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Image data are rotated when transferring the image data to a printer engine which are stored in a storage unit for storing bit map data generated on the basis of 5 print data. The above characteristic permits the rotation of the image data to be made without a decrease in the throughput of a printer and high-speed printing to be carried out.